The GameTable panel emerged as a prominent fixture during the concurrent workshops session at the conference, capturing the attention of the largest audience among the available workshops. This reception underscored its significant appeal and importance within the community, eliciting enthusiastic responses from all participants.

participants promptly following GameTable's social media accounts through the provided QR codes.

During the subsequent hour, dedicated to audience participation and discourse, I fielded inquiries from attendees regarding avenues for involvement with GameTable, opportunities for contributing through scientific publications, and methods for generating content for our social media channels. Several newly affiliated GameTable members utilized this forum to seek clarification on matters pertaining to COST publication and dissemination funding, while others sought insights into engagement metrics, outreach strategies, and the sustainability of GameTable-produced resources. Collectively, this segment fostered immense enthusiasm for GameTable and the interdisciplinary study of games.

Throughout the Board Game Studies 2024 conference, GameTable featured prominently in numerous presentations, either through acknowledgments, closing remarks, or audience queries, serving as a conduit for presenters to continue their research endeavours. The significance of the GameTable network to the broader Board Game Studies Community was reaffirmed by the proactive efforts of conference participants to engage with both myself and other GameTable representatives, seeking opportunities for networking, collaboration, and membership acquisition.

In summary, the event marked a notable accomplishment, and we are gratified to have orchestrated its execution. This platform facilitated interaction with over 200 members of the GameTable working group, securing commitments for heightened future involvement. Furthermore, the conference not only fortified existing connections but also unveiled novel prospects for collaboration and progression within the GameTable community.
